

My question is...

During the LTT workshop in Berlin, where students from Katowice were guests in Berlin, a chain of interviews was initiated. The following excerpt may function as a reference to the chosen verb 'living'..

Elisa: I am Elisa. My question is: In your opinion, why do specific living beings like humans but also birds for example - why do they have an instant reaction to beat and rhythm. Or why we do subconsciously follow the sound with our body?

Marta: I am Marta, I like to answer your question. I think that every being or human or animal is connected to the world which has some rhythmic rules. There is a rhythm of the day and night, of light and for the oceans have waves and is connected to the moon. And we as people and animals have the sense to feel all these changes in the world and it is a really natural thing that we can hear and to react to all these sounds and rhythms of the world.
